

Murder Suspect Caught After 10 Years

A man wanted for a murder in Texas in 2000 has been arrested in Louisiana.

Juan Reza Ortiz left Austin, Texas, over 10 years ago. He is accused of beating a woman there with a piece of wood. She later died.

U.S. Marshals and other investigators found that a woman who might be Ortiz's wife was living in Louisiana. She owned two cars. A man called "Jaime Dominguez" had been arrested for traffic offenses while driving these cars.

Police had no fingerprints from Ortiz. But they had a thumbprint from his Texas driver's license from 1998. It matched the thumbprint the Louisiana police had taken from "Dominguez".

Ortiz was arrested on Wednesday. He will go back to Texas for trial.

U.S. Marshal Kevin Harrison says, "Mr. Ortiz found out today we keep playing until we prevail."
